Producer's Note

[French: Note de rédacteur]

A Producer's Note contains information added to the book by the producing organization (i.e. NNELS). It's commonly used to describe differences between the print book and the ebook version. Traditionally, this has been called a transcriber's note, reader's note, or editor's note.

This section is styled with Heading 1 and placed after the section About this Digital Book. The text within the body of the Producer's Note is styled as Normal.

It may contain information about a key way that the etext differs from the original ebook, or clarify some key aspect of the document.

Common usage of Producer's Notes include:

- indexes
- When all images are in Black and White. If they are mostly Black and White, you can add unless otherwise stated.
- When all images are of people with the same skin tone. See Skin Tone, Gender and Age for more.
- Indigenous Languages
- Poetry
- Images of Text
- Children's Books

If you have any questions, post your question on the Production Q&A
