Wiki's For Knowledge Management

VILSC 2018 Scott Leslie BC Libraries Cooperative

INTRO

- Who are you?
- Do you currently wiki? If not why not?
- Who am I?

Some things about the Coop

- We're not a library. we have a lot of tech-saavy people on staff.
- We do open source as exclusively as possible
- We are super cost-aware, don't like to spend when we don't have to

wiki.libraries.coop

Why Wiki?

- Easy collaborative document editing and creation
- Easy search and browse
- Improve transparency and help reduce silos
- Anticipate knowledge growth even before it happens

Why DOKUWIKI?

- Open source, mature, lots of plugins https://www.dokuwiki.org/plugins
- Document based, not database
- Git backed, which means key staff can have an offline version of the wiki on their laptops
- Ability to move pages and namespaces (means you don't have to get it perfect the first time)

Why DOKUWIKI? Part II

- Access control can control both visibility and editabling; can include public sections
- Re-skinning; the nav bars are actually wiki pages!
- Easily embed other content calendars list of google docs in a folder
- Can host structured data and offer ways to export it?

How we made it work

- If you have even a few people using it don't kill it, build on it!
- Redesign, info architecture
- Gardening! together and separately

Is wiki always the way? NO

- Very small groups/locations a binder may make a ton more sense
- Non-volatile information may not be the best way to handle official policy docs you don't want edited
